

Aid for the tutor in writing the assessment for the student paper

The main objective of the tutor's assessment is to provide an overview of the actuality of the aims set for the paper, requirements set for the compliance of the paper, achievement of goals and the devotion of the student in performing the work.

While writing the assessment it is recommended to give an assessment to the following aspects:

- actuality of research problems
- relevance of the aim of the paper and compliance of the structure of the paper with the set aim
- compliance of the subtasks set in the work with the main aim set
- relevance of the methodology chosen for the achievement of aims
- achievement of the aims of the paper and the compliance of the volume of the work with the set requirements
- importance and usability of conclusions/results

The tutor also gives his/her assessment on the student as the compiler of the paper in addition to the substantive part of the student paper where it is recommended to refer to the attitude of the student towards the work, his/her initiative, independent problem solving skills, analysis and synthesis skills, competence and its creation in the given sector in the course of writing the paper. The material part of the assessment consists of the valuation of the student as the learner:

- interest towards the work
- competence in the given sector incl its improvement (even more important) in the course of writing the paper
- independence and initiative; ability to independently find materials, solutions
- inventiveness
- sense of duty and keeping to the agreements
- etc

If the tutor has allowed the paper to the defence, he/she has expressed by it that the paper prepared complies with the requirements valid in the School of Digital Technologies of Tallinn University and recommends to consider the work as passed.

Sincerely

Director of the School of Digital Technologies of Tallinn University
